New Book offers Guidance on How to Bring about Passionate, Prosperous and Fulfilling Life Purpose for Those Having to Reinvent Their Career Midstream

Littleton, CO, Oct 5, 2009 – If you have found yourself having to reinvent your career, before you start out on your new path, make sure what you are creating is from your life's purpose, and passion. Making what you create a reflection of who you really are. Creating a life that is prosperous and fulfilling.

The economic downturn has left millions looking for a new direction for their life. Entire industries have downsized or collapsed altogether. These factors are causing many to consider completely changing careers. Yet with so much of the economy in turmoil, they do not know where to turn. The book, Citizen King, takes you through the process of redefining your life. How to make the kinds of changes that will bring you what you need, not just to get by, but to actually create the idea of your life that will hold you through the storms to come. Creating a resilient, effective and prosperous life for yourself.

Les Jensen, the author, has had to recreate his life mid stream. After 25 years in the Broadcast Television industry, as a Chief Engineer, Les has had to completely redefine his life path. Les shares with his readers what that can look like, what to expect and how to get through it. Incredible changes are happening, where we come out, individually and collectively, is completely up to us, the citizens, acting as kings.
